Live Trading Acknowledgment

Effective date: June 22, 2026

This acknowledgment is a first draft for review by counsel. Do not publish until approved.

Live Trading Warning

Live trading submits real orders to your connected exchange account and can result in real financial loss.

Before enabling live trading, you acknowledge that:

- crypto trading is risky and volatile
- live orders may execute at unexpected prices
- orders may be rejected, delayed, cancelled, duplicated, or partially filled
- fees and slippage affect results
- exchange outages and API failures can affect execution
- automation can create losses
- you remain responsible for account monitoring

Required Product Display

Before live trading is enabled, the product should show:

- connected exchange
- trading mode
- enabled order types
- max order size

- max exposure
- selected buy execution style
- automation features enabled
- emergency stop location
- API credential permission status
- current open positions/orders if available

Consent Record

The product should record the user, timestamp, venue, settings, acknowledgement text version, and any material live-trading configuration displayed at the time of consent.
